Finding your path to meaningful work isn’t something that just happens by magic. It’s an intentional, lifelong process, which may lead you to surprising new discoveries about yourself. The career counselors at BEAM are pros at this process, which is why I strongly encourage my students to visit with them, even if the job search seems a long way off. It’s never too soon or too late to connect to your unique sense of purpose, and BEAM is there to help.